Race to track “rat ‘virus’ passengers, global effort to stop spread, mandatory quarantine, ‘covid’ flashbacks, and mask-up, are just a few of the incredibly ludicrous headlines floating around today. This asinine attempt to scare the wo[illegible] ‘virus’ outbreak would be completely comical if it were not so devious. [illegible]vid’

fraud, how could any sane human accept this new nonsense? It is obviously a distractive measure, but even with that knowledge, who in their right mind would believe this insanity.

> All eyes are concentrated on a fraudulent virus pandemic, and that is exactly what the ruling elite that now control all thought and non-action of the herd desire. Tunnel vision and concentration on state-manufactured monsters does not allow for critical thought, nor does it allow for any sane decision-making by the general populace.~ Gary D. Barnett, "The Long-Planned Second Wave of This Coronavirus is Now Going Into High Gear," LewRockwell.com, June 27, 2020

Yes, I am talking about the newest and most 'unique' scare about something mislabeled as 'hantavirus.' Anyone who accepts this lie as real is so far lost and mindless as to be little more than a willing and obedient drone of the State. To attempt this type of fraud after the ‘covid’ scam, rests only on the fact that this government and its media mouthpieces actually think that the general population en masse have not enough brain cells left to function, and have erased all knowledge of the past six years. They could be correct, but I sense much less trepidation this time around. Maybe given the gullibility of the collective herd, that is just wishful thinking.

How to behave in case you meet someone who falls again for the NEW HANTAVIRUS PSYOP

I despise having to address and write about this after all that has happened, but given the push to make this global ‘news,’ has forced my hand. The ‘hantavirus’ scam has been around for a long time, although it has always been claimed as isolated cases, and said by so-called 'scientists' to not be able to spread among humans. That should have been an easy call, since absolutely nothing has ever been proven to spread through the air by humans, as no 'virus' has ever been separated, isolated, and shown to cause any particular sickness, spread by association, or even exist in the first place. The idea of virology in any regard as legitimate is a vast stretch of intellect.

Oh, but this one is special. According to the CDC, that 'honest' and 'safety-driven' organization that was a major factor in the fraudulent 'covid' hoax that killed millions by injection of toxic poison called 'covid' vaccines, is explaining the fake 'hantavirus' this way:

> "Hantaviruses are a 'family' of viruses which can cause serious illness and death. These 'viruses' cause 'diseases' like 'hantavirus pulmonary syndrome (HPS) and hemorrhagic fever with renal syndrome (HFRS). They are mainly spread by rodents.

As an aside, yes, a 'hantavirus' 'vaccine,' although not available yet, has been in the works for some time; at least since early 2024, just as the 'covid' fraud was being phased out. It was/is specifically meant to target the Andes 'virus' (ANDV) version, which happens to be the only one said to be able to transfer from person to person, and of course, it is an mRNA injection. Of course, the Andes 'version' is the one supposedly now the 'threat.' Imagine the luck of the government and its medical whores in the pharmaceutical killing industry? They must have been psychic!

A couple who decided to leave the Dutch cruise liner to go bird-watching in the Andes of South America, the only place to get the dreaded 'ANDV,' must have somehow got close to an infected rat, and immediately contracted the claimed worst 'hantavirus' strain, and brought it back with them to the ship, spreading it to everyone. But according to the CDC, only extreme close contact could allow this 'spread.' Then of course, some got away to seek treatment, and the 'spreading' continued, and now might go global. Is not that amazing? At least it did not come from China, and attack the entire world. This time, South America is the culprit nation-state.

This started with the idiocy that Gene Hackman's wife, Betsy Arakawa, died of a 'hantavirus' infection. That makes no sense whatsoever as there is no proof of this or any other virus, but that planted the seed of this so-called deadly affliction. The show must go on you see, so now this new staged ‘pandemic’ possibility has taken shape. I cannot believe it is expected to go worldwide, and that people will comply with draconian ‘covid’ measures to any level of the past due to this “rat-baiting” event scam.

Be very careful! ‘Hantavirus’ can be easily mistaken as the flu. Imagine that? Doctors are warning everyone that this unimaginable threat that has allegedly killed a small handful of people, begins with benign symptoms like fatigue, chills, muscle aches, headaches, and possible dizziness, but has nearly a 40% mortality rate. Does this hogwash bring back any memories at all? Every single so-called ‘virus’ fraud is said to have identical cold and flu symptoms. That is because there is no such virus, just the hype to frighten the gullible sheep into fear and compliance.

I could be wrong, but I think this just another distraction from Trump’s insanity, the manufactured war in Iran, the closing off of oil and vital goods, the debasement of the dollar, recession, depression, inflation, and the WWE circus that is American politics today. Every distraction that is taken with any serious effort, just enhances the ongoing building of a fully technocratic totalitarian State, set up entirely due to the structure of an AI, biometric, monetarily controlled new world order.

The big club that you ain’t in has you believing every narrative promoted by the governing monster and its duplicitous lying media. At this late stage, accepting or believing any report from any political individual or entity, any mainstream site, and much of the so-called alternative space, is akin to naïvety so intense as to rest on total ignorance.

There is only one provable, existing, and deadly virus — Government.
